St Brandon's Bonefish Heaven - Mauritius

If wading and sight casting to double digit Bonefish, gloriously finicky Indo-Pacific Permit and a host of Trevally species on powder white sand flats in the Indian Ocean is your thing... then look no further, St Brandon's Atoll is the destination for you. St Brandon's (Cargados Carajos Shoals) is a group of over 50 small islands, coral ridges and vast sand flats which is cut by three major passes and extends 50 km from north to south.

Situated 268 nautical miles north-east of Mauritius's main island this area is rich in fish stocks, flora and fauna. The magnificent condition of the coral and the lobster infested outer reefs is proof that other than a small population of Creole natives who live on Raphael Island in the north this area has had very little human interference.

Panyame Tigerfish Paradise - Mozambique

Panyame Concession covers the beautiful western corner of Mozambique, with the camp situated on the southern bank of the Zambezi River, approximately 13km downstream from the town of Zumbo, and roughly 15km downstream from the confluence of the Luangwa and Zambezi Rivers. This area is unique in that it offers anglers the opportunity to fish the river, the delta where the river spills into the lake, or the top end of the lake itself. The maze of channels and structure offer anglers' infinite opportunities to target trophy size Tigerfish irrespective of weather conditions or water levels... and the concentration of trophy size fish is legendary to say the least.
